and also from attending religious

My Dear Sir Yours of the 27th, inst, received, In reply I regret very much the trouble my son has been to you, I cannot but appreciate your forbearance and kindness, I telegraphed you this morning to send him home, I think now the best course is to put the boy to work and make his own living. Further indulgence in attempting to give him an education would not result in any benefit to him. Your very sincere friend
